Although, the Rashtriya Ekta Diwas or National Unity Day is celebrated on October 31st every year to commemorate the birth anniversary of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, who was India's first Deputy Prime Minister of India and first Home Minister of India from 1947 to 1950.

This year, the 147th birth anniversary of this "Iron Man of India" was celebrated with unique twist in campus of Shri Balasaheb Tirpude College of Hotel Management and Catering Technology. He was a lawyer, political leader, and statesman who believed in the unity of people for the country's advancements. To tribute his contribution towards India's Independence and unity along with Diwali celebration which is the festival of lights celebrated in various regions across India, A Traditional Day was celebrated. The main significance of this celebration was the making of "Rangoli of Unity". In which individual colour represents the individual student from the different semester united together to make beautiful rangoli which represent the bond of friendship, trust and not the less unity. This activity mark was mark on last working day before the Diwali Vacation. Concluded by all the teaching and non-teaching staff by lighting the lamp before leaving the college.
